

WORK IS RESUMED BY THE GRAND JURY

Meade Findley and John Heller Selected to Succeed Two Members Who Were Taken Ill.

MORE WITNESSES SUMMONED

Case of William Blythe, Charged With Failure to Provide for Children in Circuit Court.

The Jackson county grand jury resumed its work this morning and the indications are that the session will not adjourn this week. Two new members were sworn this morning to fill the vacancies caused by the illness of L. C. Huffington and J. L. Bowers who are unable to continue their work. Meade Findley and John Heller were accepted and started work with the other four members. This is the first time for several years that a change has been made in the personnel of the grand jury during a session.

A number of witnesses were called before the body this morning, but it is understood that the day was devoted largely to a review and study of the evidence that had previously been presented. A large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed for Thursday, many of them from this city. The grand jury may not close its work until next week.

Twenty-one indictments have already been returned by the body and it is known that a number of alleged violations of law are yet under consideration. Thus far only two arrests on grand jury indictments have been made, one on a murder charge and the other for receiving stolen goods. These arrests were made on bench warrants.

The case of William Blythe, of Brownstown, charged with failure to provide for his children, was on trial in the circuit court today. Blythe was arrested several months ago following the death of his wife and the alleged destitute circumstances of his children. His arrest was made on the same day that his wife died. He was brought into circuit court at the time, but was permitted to go to Bedford where he said he had employment with the understanding that he would provide for his motherless children. It is said that he failed to provide for them and was arrested several weeks ago and has been held in the county jail.

Blythe was represented at the trial by O. O. Swails, county attorney. He asked that about twenty witnesses be called to testify in his behalf. Some of the witnesses called by the defendant gave testimony that was used to an advantage by the prosecution. The case was tried before the court.

After hearing the evidence, the court found the defendant guilty and fixed his sentence from one to seven years in the state prison.

CLARENCE WOLKA DIES SUDDENLY NEAR VALLONIA

Body Found Early Today by Sister—Death Held to be Due to Leakage of the Heart.

Clarence Wolka died very suddenly this morning at his home south of Vallonia. His body was found at 5:30 o'clock by his sister and it is thought he had probably died about three hours earlier. George Manuel, coroner, was immediately called and reported death due to leakage of heart and contributory epilepsy.

Mr. Wolka had been subject to epilepsy for about eighteen years. He worked on the farm Tuesday hauling cow peas and was in Vallonia Tuesday evening. He was 31 years old and a son of Mrs. John Wolka. He is survived by his mother, two brothers and one sister. The funeral services will be conducted Friday morning at 10:30 at the home. Burial will be at the Lutheran cemetery.

The Seymour Orchestra will give their fourth dance at Moose Hall next Monday night (St. Patrick's). Admission $1.00 a couple. Ladies 25cts. Be sure and bring your invitation.

RETURNS ARE DUE FROM INCOME TAXES

Many Local People Preparing Statements for the Collector of Internal Revenue.

TO BE FILED BEFORE MARCH 15

Mailing on That Day will not Satisfy Requirements of Law—Instructions to Corporations.

The time for filing income tax returns closes March 15, and scores of people in Seymour and Jackson county are busy preparing their statements for the department of internal revenue. Peter J. Kruger, collector of internal revenue, has issued a bulletin in which he makes it quite clear that the returns must be in his office before the expiration of the period and that mailing on March 15 will not satisfy the requirements of the law. The ruling applies to individuals as well as to corporations, it is stated. All unmarried persons whose net incomes are $1,000 or more and all married people who have net incomes of $2,000 or more are required to file returns.

The filing of the blanks is quite complicated as so many different items are taken into consideration. A number of local people have taken advantage of the assistance of income tax experts who are sent out by the department while others have taken their cares and troubles to their banker. The blanks which are sent to farmers are probably more complicated than those sent to wage earners as records for the last two or three years are required. The value of live stock and other property on the farm must be given in computing the amount of the "net" income of the tax payer. Corporation blanks are probably the most complicated of any that are issued. All corporations are required to send returns regardless of their incomes. As the blanks have not been issued to corporations, they were permitted to make out a skeleton form, provided by the department, which must be filed before March 15 together with one-fourth of the estimated amount due the government.

The local banks have received a bulletin from the internal revenue collector relative to corporation returns. The sections of the bulletins which are of importance and which the department asks to be published follow:

"It has become apparent that

WELDON TOBROCKE RETURNS AFTER SERVICE ABROAD

One of the Youngest Soldiers in U. S. Army Spends Nearly Two Years in France.

Weldon Tobrocke, formerly of Waymansville, has returned to his home in Columbus after nearly two years of service in France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tobrocke. He was wounded by shrapnel, gassed and had one of his fingers torn away. He is suffering some with ear trouble due to shell shock.

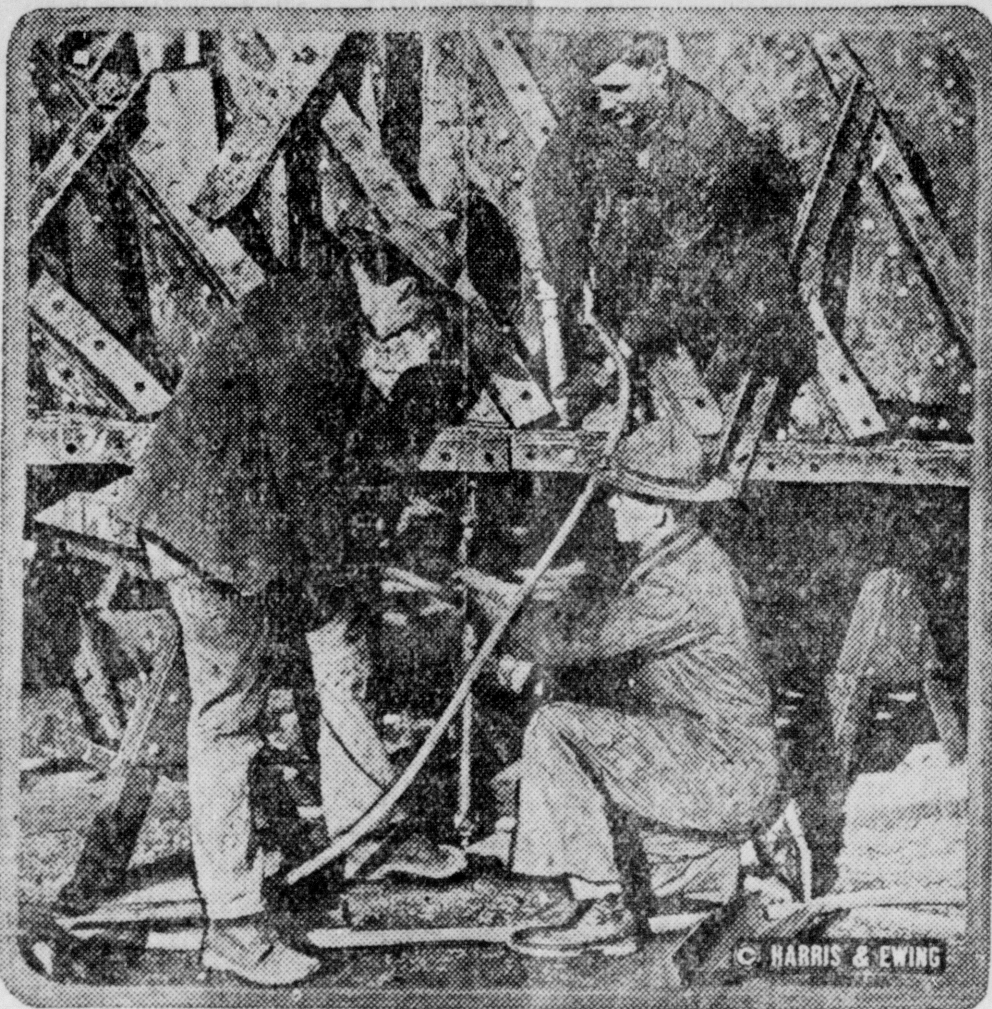

Relative to his service the Columbus Republican says:

Although he wears a French citation and other insignias showing the part he played in the world struggle, Tobrocke, who is just past 17, modestly shies talking about the war. He enlisted a short time before America entered the struggle in 1917 and was sent to the Columbus, Ohio, barracks. Only short training was given him and he arrived in France June 26, 1917.

The first division was the first to go into the line and Tobrocke's company spent many months in the trenches. He refused to go into detail regarding his wounds. Because of his injuries he was relieved from active service in the front lines in July, 1918. He arrived in New York in December and has been at a debarkation hospital and at Camp Merritt ever since.

FIND WORK IN REVIVED SHIPYARD

The few industries in and near Washington are absorbing easily so far the men who have been mustered out of the United States army at the capital. Here are three men, one from overseas, just out of the army who are helping build ships in a yard in Alexandria, Va., where the industry has been revived for the first time since the days of George Washington.

W. E. HOADLEY IN BUSINESS HERE THIRTY-FOUR YEARS

Well Known Business Man Quietly Celebrates Sixty-Ninth Birthday Anniversary.

W. E. Hoadley, one of the most widely known business men in Seymour, quietly celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday anniversary today. Despite the anniversary, he was at his store on South Chestnut street as usual but during the day many of his friends who knew of the anniversary called to offer their congratulations.

Mr. Hoadley has been a resident of this city forty years and has been engaged in business here for thirty-four years. He came here from Cincinnati to work as a brass finisher in the old railroad shops. He continued at that employment for six years and then opened a small grocery store on South Chestnut street, in the block south of where his present business is located. The building was a frame structure and the front door was reached by mounting four wooden steps. He opened a huckster route soon after he engaged in business and later operated three routes.

Some years ago Mr. Hoadley purchased the south half of his present building, and later built an addition to accommodate his growing business. For several years his son, J. Avis Hoadley, has been associated with him and they have built up a business of great magnitude.

Mr. Hoadley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hoadley, natives of England. When he was thirteen years old, his parents, who conducted a grocery in Cincinnati, decided to go back to England and he accompanied them. He remained abroad nine years and then returned to the United States. He made a second trip overseas about ten years ago, but declares that "the United States is the place for me."

TRIAL MAY NOT BE HELD ON HABEAS CORPUS ACTION

Expected That Charles Pritchard May be Permitted to Give Bond—Held on Murder Charge.

The first habeas corpus proceeding that has been instituted in circuit court in many years is set for trial next Saturday. Charles Pritchard, charged with the murder of his wife, having filed the action in an effort to secure release from the county jail pending trial of the case. He was arrested here a few days ago on a grand jury indictment.

When Pritchard was arraigned the state refused to permit him to give bond as most defendants held on this charge are kept in jail until the trial. S. A. Barnes, attorney for the defendant, then filed a habeas corpus action. The court set Saturday as the trial date. It is understood that some arrangement may be made whereby Pritchard will be permitted to give bond and the trial on his motion may not be held.

THOMPSON DECIDES TO DON OVERALLS AND GET TO WORK

Had Choice of Serving One Hundred Days in Penal Farm or Paying Fine of $100 and Costs.

Ham Thompson, who was recently found guilty of passing fraudulent checks, has decided that he will don overalls and work for a while at the state penal farm. When he was adjudged guilty in circuit court he was fined $100 and costs. He had the choice of paying the fine and costs or spending a hundred and some odd days at the Putnamville institution.

Thompson was arrested after he is alleged to have passed a number of checks in this city and elsewhere. He was taken in custody in Illinois and is said to have given a bogus check the day before he was arrested. Sheriff McCord, who returned Tuesday night from Jeffersonville where he took Harry Jones and Benjamin Bryant to the reformatory, will take Thompson to the penal farm this week.

HIGHWAY CONTRACTS ARE THROWN OPEN BY NEW LAW

Measure Passed by Legislature Relieves Contractors of Obligation of Such Work.

A law which was enacted by the session of the Indiana which has just adjourned will throw open the highway contracts in this township which were awarded to the Boone Construction Company and to Ewing Shields in July 1916. The law provides that contractors shall not be held responsible for contracts which were awarded prior to July 1, 1917. The law was passed in view of the material increase in the cost of materials after the declaration of war.

The commissioners in Jackson county had ordered the contractors and bondsmen for the four roads in this township to appear at the April session to show cause why the work should not be started without further delay or the contracts be readvertised. The enactment of the law, as understood here, means that the contractors are relieved of these obligations and may appear before the commissioners at any time and demand a return of the contracts and the bonds.

It is expected that in view of the law, the commissioners will readvertise for bids without further delay so that the work can be started on the roads for which the bonds have already been sold. The matter may be presented at the next meeting of the commissioners.

SUPREME COUNCIL WORKING RAPIDLY

Draft of Preliminary Peace Treaty With Germany May be Completed This Week.

BOUNDARIES ARE DISCUSSED

Final Consideration of Military, Naval and Air Terms to be Taken up Today.

(By Fred S. Ferguson, United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, March 12—The peace treaty with Germany may be completed this week if the present schedule of the supreme war council is maintained. Final consideration was to be given the military, naval and air terms today.

Discussion of Germany's eastern boundary is expected to be finished tomorrow. Her western frontier is to be taken up Friday, when President Wilson is expected to participate in the discussion. On Saturday reparation and financial assistance for Germany will be settled.

Disposition of all scheduled business will, of course, mean completion of terms for the preliminary treaty. The next step will be calling in the German delegates for submission of the draft. The plan for establishment of a new "buffer" state composed of the Rhenish provinces, is expected to permit rapid progress in determination of Germany's western boundary, probably on Friday, the day it is taken up.

PEACE WORK AHEAD OF THE ORIGINAL SCHEDULE

Advisors of President Wilson Confident He Will Return to U. S. Late in May.

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard the U. S. S. George Washington, March 12—As President Wilson neared France today his advisors were confident that he would be able to return to the United States by the last of May. All information reaching the George Washington indicates the peace work is being speeded up to such an extent that it is really several weeks ahead of its schedule.

Another group of destroyers has joined the George Washington, replacing those which put the Azores yesterday and last night. The George Washington was making slower progress today but was expected to reach Brest tomorrow afternoon.

TRANS-ATLANTIC LINERS UNABLE TO GET COAL

Sailings of Many Ships Postponed Because of General Strike at New York Harbor.

By United Press.

New York, March 12—Many transatlantic liners are held at their piers today as a result of inability to get coal because of the harbor strike.

Cunard, White Star, and Red Star liners postponed sailings until adequate supplies of coal can be secured. The marine workers' affiliations will get all workers to work on barges of companies who have compromised with the affiliation.

4,000 Platform Men Leave Work on Street Cars.

By United Press.

Newark, N. J., March 12—Four thousand platform men left their jobs on the street cars of northern New Jersey at 4 a. m. today as a result of refusal of the public service company to recognize the Amalgamated Union, comprising motormen and conductors. The strike completely paralyzed street car traffic in Newark, Hoboken, Trenton, Jersey City, Elizabeth and many other North Jersey points. jitney busses are carrying workers from their homes to the various railroad and ferry terminals. Approximately 250 of these busses were in service today.

BERLIN MENACED BY NEW OUTBREAKS

Spartacans Reinforced by Recruits, Entrench Themselves in New Positions.

RIOTS GAINED INTENSITY

Public Demands That Government Forces Discontinue Use of Airplane Bombs.

By United Press.

Berlin, March 12.—Berlin was menaced by Spartacan outbreaks today. Government troops, after desperate fighting, captured the greater part of the suburb of Lichtenburg. Most of the Spartacans entered from there to the southeastern part of the city proper.

Reinforced by recruits they entrenched themselves. From these new positions, their artillery now endangers a large portion of the city.

Meanwhile the insurgent forces remaining in Lichtenburg, fell back to the railway station, where they organized new defenses. Detachment of a large part of the government forces to combat the Spartacans in the southeastern section of the city rendered capture of the Lichtenburg station a serious problem.

The government's proposition was made increasingly difficult by public demand that use of artillery and airplane bombs cease. The fear that resistance to this demand might turn the people against the government seemed possible that war Minister Noske would accede.

The fighting gained intensity, the center of Berlin was the scene of gay social affairs, cafes and dance halls being crowded to capacity.

ALLEGED BOOTLEGGERS ARRAIGNED IN COURT

Last of the 440 Defendants Appear Before Judge Anderson in Federal Court.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, March 12.—Judge Anderson in federal court today meted out more sentences in trying to complete the work of arraigning the 440 defendants indicted by the federal grand jury. The last of this number faced the court today. Most of them involve the transportation of liquor in Indiana.

Fifty-three persons were arraigned during the morning session and the sentences were lenient because most of the defendants had been held at the Marion county jail in default of bond.

REPORT SHOWS DEMAND FOR RESUMPTION OF BUILDING

Shortage of Dwellings Revealed by Investigation Made by Department of Labor.

By United Press.

Washington, March 12.—Fifty-seven out of seventy-two cities investigated by the labor department show a demand for the immediate resumption of building.

Questionnaires were sent out to city officials and most of them gave the reason for present delay in resuming building as the high price of material and labor. Some blamed it on the failure to obtain loans.

"Ohio, Indiana and Illinois show a shortage in dwellings with an occasional demand for schools and factories," the department says.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12, 1919

Americans who lived in cities were told last year that it was a patriotic duty to secure the use of a small piece of unused land and devote all the spare time necessary to raising vegetables for home tables in order to make available more food for overseas shipment. The results were so satisfactory and the work so pleasant that many have acquired the gardening habit, and now nothing would tempt GARDEN these converts to give up their back yard or vacant lot gardens. Many city people have learned for the first time the taste of really fresh garden vegetables, and many there are who no longer will be satisfied to eat those that have been hauled a long distance and handled many times before finally reaching the kitchen.

There is something about the cultivation of the soil, something touching upon the creative impulse, that never has been experienced by the man or woman, boy or girl, who has spent all his life in the city and has not had a chance to tinker with a piece of workable ground. The cultivation of a garden involves seeking an answer to a thousand questions in natural history, and demands an elemental knowledge of the workings of nature. Many city gardeners passed through the first chapter in the book of nature last season, and they are now eager for the first signs of spring, so that they may profit by what they have learned and may delve deeper into the buried treasures of their garden.

Thousands have acquired the gardening habit. It pays.

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—“For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her.”—Mrs. W. D. WELLS, 226 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, sideache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

INTEREST HERE IN RETURN OF RAINBOW DIVISION

National Guardsmen Will be Home in April to Participate in Victory Loan Campaign.

Reports have recently come from Coblenz announcing that the Rainbow Division, which landed in France November 7, 1917, has just received orders from European headquarters to prepare for the return to the United States. The division will begin enlisting for Antwerp April 1.

This report is very interesting to the citizens of Seymour inasmuch as four local young men, Reginald and Kingsley Brinklow, Edward Huber and Cullen Barnes, are among those to return. The boys are attached to Battery F of the 150 Field Artillery that was organized at Indiana University when war was first declared. The battery was placed under the command of Col. Tindall, of Indianapolis. The 150th is composed primarily of Indiana boys.

The Rainbow Division was among the first to land on foreign soil. Their guns opened fire on the enemy in one of the most dangerous parts of the front. Many times allied officials congratulated the troops and their commanders on the gallant fight they put up all during the trying days before the general American assault was initiated.

This division will be the first with the Army of Occupation to be sent home. It will probably take several days to transport the men and their equipment from the position on the Rhine to Antwerp. Every effort will be expended to transport the men as quickly as possible. American mad cars and other means of transportation will be used almost entirely on account of their superiority over French and German facilities.

WALTER HARRIS BECOMES MOTIVE POWER INSPECTOR

Former General Foreman of B. & O. Here Goes to Northwest Division of System.

The Washington Herald Carries the following relative to a promotion that has come to Walter F. Harris, former general foreman at the B. & O. round house here:

A deserved promotion has been received by Walter F. Harris, carrying with it not only increased responsibilities but a substantial advance in salary.

For some time, Mr. Harris has been master mechanic at the local shops of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company. He has been promoted to the office of motive power inspector for the entire northwest division of the same system, running from Pittsburgh, Pa., to Chicago. His headquarters will be at Cleveland, Ohio, and he already has gone there to assume his new duties. His family will join him at the close of the present school term.

Succeeding Mr. Harris, whose departure will be generally regretted by his many friends, as master mechanic at the local shops, W. F. Hayes has arrived from Chillicothe, Ohio.

FORMER SALOON BUILDINGS ARE UNDERGOING REPAIRS

One to be Used as a Restaurant While Another is Rented to a Vulcanizing Company.

Some of the former saloon buildings in this city are being remodeled preparatory to being converted into other business places.

The buildings on the north side of West Second, will soon be occupied by a restaurant conducted by Arman & Zorbas, and the one at the corner of Ewing and Second will be used by the Indiana Inside Tire Company, which was recently organized here. Owners of other places have had their property repaired prior to renting it for industries, commercial or otherwise.

The old postoffice room on Second street has been rehauled and will be used as a furniture store, it is stated.

Soldiers' Letters

Letter from France.

Mrs. Henry Cordes, East Second street, received the following letter from her son, Pvt. Edrick J. Cordes. This is the first she has heard from him since January 8. A few hours after Mrs. Cordes received this letter she received a telegram that her son had arrived in New York:

Brest, France.

Dearest Mother:

I have just finished the finest meal I have had in France. Got it here in the navy "Y" restaurant which is run in connection with the regular reading rooms, canteens and so on. For three Franes we got turkey, cranberries, French fried potatoes, peaches and all the bread and butter we could eat in a week. We have been here a week now waiting for transportation to the States. I was able to get a day of liberty in Brest. It was the first "day off," officially speaking, since I came to France.

Just noticed in the papers that the fellows were kicking about conditions here. Right now this is the best camp in France, or at least the best I have hit. Of course, there are better camps in the States.

By the way, you needn't expect me home very soon. In three more days it will be three months since I started for the U. S. As I have come about 500 miles and still have about 4,000 yet to come you can figure how soon I'll be home at that rate. I hardly think I shall travel so slowly from now on.

As usual, I have run out of things to write about. Tell the boys I will write to them as soon as I hit the U. S. A.

FRANCHISE LEAGUE TO MEET AT INDIANAPOLIS

Matter of Organizing League in Seymour Before April 1 Under Discussion.

The Woman's Franchise League of Indiana will hold its annual convention at the Claypool hotel, Indianapolis, April 1 to 3. In the past three months suffrage has made rapid strides in this state and the meeting this year augurs a great amount of interest for Hoosier women. Unless the courts again intervene the women of this state will vote for presidential electors in 1920.

The matter of organizing a Woman's Franchise League in this city is under discussion. Heretofore there has been no one who was willing to bear the responsibilities of organization. It is probable that the Seymour women will create such a league before April 1.

The Brownstown women recently organized a league of this kind with Miss Caddie Shepard as its president. It is reported that the organization is doing some very interesting work and would very willingly send representatives to assist in creative operation in any vicinity contemplating the organizing of a franchise league.

Representatives from Brownstown will attend the state convention at Indianapolis in April.

TELEPHONE COMPANIES COLLECT ABOUT $115,000

Money to be Refunded Under Ruling of Court on the Burleson Injunction Suit.

By United Press

Indianapolis, Ind., March 12—Efforts are being made by telephone companies to procure authorization from the public service commission to make installation and removal charges such as were granted by the federal government. The federal ruling, however, has been held up by an injunction. Telephone company representatives probably will meet with members of the commission next week to determine what action may be taken to obtain such authorization.

Arrangements have not yet been made by the companies in the state to refund to patrons the difference between the regularly authorized intrastate rate and the higher rates levied under orders issued by Postmaster-General Burleson, which were charged before the injunction was granted.

Telephone companies in Indiana have collected about $115,000 which will have to be refunded under the ruling, according to estimates of members of the commission. However, representatives of the companies contend that the injunction has not been made permanent yet and that an appeal may be taken if the final decision of the court is unfavorable. For this reason, they contend, making refunds now might result in great confusion.

Rev. Albert Ogle, of Indianapolis, came this morning to visit friends for a few days. Rev. Ogle was pastor of the First Baptist church in this city for fourteen years.

Miller's Antiseptic Oil, Known as

Snake Oil

Accomplishing Most Wonderful Results
 "I want to thank you for your wonderful oil," states Mr. J. C. Gibson, of Jonesboro, Ark. "My little girl was very low with diphtheria; I had given her two doses of medicine which cost me $10, with no results. I bought a 25c bottle of your oil and one application relieved her. Now she is well. It is the greatest remedy I ever saw." Mr. Gibson made this statement before hundreds of people. Mrs. Florence Meager, 24 Whitney Street, Hartford, Conn., writes: "I have used your Antiseptic Oil for neuralgia with good effects. Only thing I have ever tried that stopped the pain immediately." Mrs. Williams, Gadsden, Ala., writes: "I have used your great pain oil for rheumatism, stiff joints, also for sore throat, and I want to say that it is the greatest remedy I ever tried. I recommend it to all sufferers." Many cures reported daily from thousands of grateful users of this wonderful oil. FISHERFOLK HEAR CALL OF THE RIPPLING WAVES

Coming of Spring Causes Some to Hunt Up Baskets of Lines, Rods and Hooks.

With the coming of March many citizens of Seymour are going to the banks of nearby streams and rivers where in hopeful expectation they bait a hook and sit and think, though sometimes just sit, while the scaly trophies they hope to land wiggle cautiously around with an "all that glitters is not gold" disposition. It is reported by experienced fisherfolk in this vicinity that suckers, small catfish and redhorse are riding the waves of White River. Others say there is not a fish in the river. All depends on one's point of view. Anyway the customary fish baskets are being carried from house to house where steady sales indicate that some one is having luck at the waters edge.

The incentive that causes so many absences from school, during the days of breaking spring and the few days before, is steadily approaching the point of perfection. It has been noticed recently that the road between this city and Rockford is seldom without the presence of pedestrian or cycle man bearing signs of aquarian exploits though they be nothing more than a can of bait or a single rod.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Seymour People Know How to Save It.

Many Seymour people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Seymour citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. W. F. Himmler, 604 S. Walnut St., says: "I am always glad to speak a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills, for I have used them with benefit. When my kidneys get out of order and I have backache, I use Doan's Kidney Pills. They never fail to relieve the trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Himmler had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Meat: Russia and the Allies

Russia crumbled away and failed the Allies largely through lack of food, according to an American eyewitness.

With plentiful reserves and resources virtually untouched, her people starved at home and at the front because there was no adequate organization to place food where it was needed.

Animals on the hoof were shipped thousands of miles to the various fronts, wasting transportation facilities required for other purposes. They arrived shrunken and emaciated, to be killed and dressed amidst filth and confusion behind the lines. Half of those brought from Siberia, it is said, perished on the way; many more were unfit for food.

On the other hand, the American packers turned live stock into meat in large sanitary plants located in the producing sections, and shipped the product under refrigeration so that it reached the trenches in France in perfect condition, without waste.

Says Our Authority:

"Had such facilities for cold storage transportation been available to the Russian supply committee as were placed at the disposal of the quartermaster of the United States by Swift & Company, there might have been a different story concerning Russia's part in the final drama of the war."

A large - scale packing industry would be an asset to Russia, in war or peace, as it has proved to be to the United States.

The cost of this large scale industry in the form of profits is only a fraction of a cent per pound of meat.

SOCIAL EVENTS

LUNTE-HEHMAN.

The following is taken from the Terre Haute Star, March 3:

A very pretty wedding was held here Sunday evening when Miss Edna Hehman became the bride of Mr. Walter Lunte, both of Seymour, at the home of the bride's brother, T. H. Hehman. The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. Charles Shoemaker, pastor of Montrose M. E. Church. The bride wore a beautiful dress of overseas blue with beaded trimmings. Immediately following the ceremony a 5 o'clock wedding dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Lunte will remain here a few days after which they will return to Seymour to their newly furnished home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lunte are both well known young people of this city. Mrs. Lunte is the daughter of F. W. Hehman of Cortland and has been employed in Seymour for a number of years. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lunte, West McDonald street, and is employed as a fireman on the B. & O. railroad.

VIOLENCE THREATENED

Fugitive Sinn Fein Leader Gives Midnight Interview.

By United Press.

Dublin, Feb. 25.—"Violence will be the only alternative remaining to Irish patriots if the peace conference at Paris fails to take steps to extend self-determination to Ireland," declared Edward DeValera, fugitive president of the revolutionary Sinn Fein party at a secret midnight interview.

"This means something like continued revolution until Ireland's rights are recognized," he said. His back eyes flashed when he said it, his big jaw squared. He spoke on quietly. Nevertheless he was emphatic.

Soldier Home.

Pvt. Neal Pfaffenberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pfaffenberger, west of the city, returned to his home Monday night after serving in the United States army overseas. Pfaffenberger enlisted at Columbus December, 1917, and was sent to the barracks at Columbus, Ohio. He enlisted in the heavy artillery but was transferred to Presidio, Calif., as a truck driver in the 62nd Regiment, Supply Co. On July 31 his parents received word that he had landed safely overseas. During his period of foreign service Pvt. Pfaffenberger saw active service at the front. Being a supply man necessitated great risk when on the firing line with supplies. It was the object of Hun airmen and artillerymen to find out the supply routes and keep a continual bombardment going to prevent the transportation of food and ammunition.

When Pvt. Pfaffenberger arrived at his home after alighting from the train here at midnight he found enough food packed at his disposal to supply emergency rations for a company. The articles that attracted his attention primarily were those he did not get while in service, eggs, gravy and fresh sausage.

Charles Roemmel has received a letter from his son, George Roemmel, stating that he expected to sail from Brest the first of this month and to arrive in the United States about the 12 or 15th. Mr. Roemmel has received no information as to the exact time of his arrival in this country. Serg. Roemmel enlisted with Company K, but has been transferred several times since he entered the service.

That Headache of Yours

You may have tried a hundred remedies without relief—but have you ever had your eyes examined?

A large majority of headaches are caused by the eyes. And nothing in the world will stop them but the wearing of the right glasses.

That stops them almost at once, and keeps them stopped. Better have us test your eyes some day.

We can tell you by a thorough examination whether your headaches come from your eyes or not.

HAS ONLY HELIUM

PLANT IN THE WORLD

Noninflammable Balloon Filler
Made by Government at Fort Worth, Tex.

The only helium plant in the world is being erected in North Fort Worth, Tex., by the United States navy department at a cost of $900,000. The plant's product is expected to remove the last danger element from ballooning.

Experts declare that production of helium in quantities will soon make it possible for big passenger and freight airships to travel everywhere, and that the airship as a war weapon will surpass even the fleet airplane.

Helium, the material Count Zeppelin needed to make his big airships a success, removes the danger of fire from the gas filling in the balloon.

The natural gas of certain wells at Petrolia, in Clay county, is the best ever found for the extraction of the helium. The products of the wells will be piped to Fort Worth, prepared for the balloons and distributed. The government is now building the pipe line at a cost of $4,000,000.

Helium is said to be approximately 92 per cent of the lifting power of hydrogen and is noninflammable. An airship inflated with helium cannot be brought down in flames. Heretofore the gas-filled balloon was at the mercy of the quicker airplanes, which could set the balloon blazing with bullets.

When America entered the world war the British government referred to the United States bureau of mines the industrial production of helium. Such a substitute for hydrogen was known to exist, but its cost was deemed prohibitive.

Funds for experimental work were provided by the joint army and navy board of rigid airships. The experimental plant was erected at a cost of $250,000.

Greatest secrecy was exercised by the government in conducting the experiment. Soldiers were kept on guard duty day and night. Newspapers were cautioned against mentioning existence of the plant until the armistice was signed.

The permanent plant will be in full operation by April 1, according to the announcement of naval officers.

GIFT FOR DISGRACE

Girl Gets a Watch and a Diamond Ring After Discharge.

"You take the watch and diamond ring for the disgrace you have suffered," were the words spoken by Mrs. Kelly, mother of Miss Elizabeth Kelly of North Hampton, to Miss Nellie Roach of 2026 Woodbine avenue, in police headquarters at Springfield, Ohio, the other day. As she spoke the mother took the articles from her daughter, who began weeping.

Miss Kelly caused Miss Roach's arrest for their theft, but later admitted that she had loaned the watch and ring to her.

Mrs. Kelly forced them upon Miss Roach, who finally accepted them and was released.

CHORUS GIRL CHICK

Sings a Song, When Asked, for a Nice Policeman.

It is a mighty hard task to distinguish between chickens, as many a policeman and constable who has been called on to arbitrate in neighborhood disputes concerning the ownership can testify. But Mrs. Frank Bechtie, of Marion, Ohio, has solved the problem.

She separated her seven chicks from a flock in Oakley Miller's barn here in the presence of Officer Burt Powell by an odd little cluck which they recognized. They followed her to the barnyard. Then she knelt and one of them came running to her and jumped on her knee. "That is Maybelle, my chorus girl chick," she informed the wondering patrolman. "She crows when the sun sets and goes to roost when it rises. Hasn't she pretty legs?" and she patted the shapely supports of her pet. "She sings, don't you, Maybelle?"

"Now sing for the gentleman. He has been nice to us."

And Maybelle sang. It wasn't a canary bird's song, but it was a song.

Adam Style

This style of furniture had its inception in England. Like the Grinling Gibbons, it bears the name which was connected with its perfection. In the early part of the eighteenth century, the Adam Brothers, who were architects and builders, designed numerous pieces of furniture for some of the buildings which they planned and erected. There was a gradual growth of their efforts and ambitions in furniture designing, until between 1754 and 1812 the Adam style had become a definite and perfected one.

Their inspiration was mostly from early Roman and Pompeian works, but in the execution of their ideas which were drawn from others, they purposely omitted ornate and gaudy features. Delicate effects were the ones borrowed by these brothers from the "ancients." It is noteworthy that these men never built furniture, their activities being limited to specifying and dictating concerning styles.

The legs of Adam Style pieces are almost without variation, entirely straight. The lines of the pieces in general are usually simple and graceful, not heavy, not too severe, and on the other hand, not too delicate in construction to be practical and useful. Dainty decorative garlands and shallow flutings further mark this style. Discriminating buyers have popularized Adam Style furniture, and it grows annually in its ever-widening circle of "convinced" admirers.

ITALY IS PREPARING TO TACKLE BIG PROGRAM OF RECONSTRUCTION

Aims to Make the Most of Whatever Place in the Sun the Peace Conference Gives Her—By the Time the Peace Treaty Is Signed It Is Expected Dawn of Greater Italy Will Be Here.

By LLOYD ALLEN,
Western Newspaper Union Staff Correspondent.

Our American ambassador here in Rome, Thomas Nelson Page, believes that Italy suffered more from the ravages of war than any other nation fighting the central powers, except Serbia and Poland, both of which were robbed and almost wholly overrun by invading Hun armies.

In spite of her war losses, which include almost half a million dead and near on to a million wounded, to say nothing of an enormous national debt, Italy is today starting out on a program of reconstruction aiming to make the most out of whatever place in the sun the peace conference gives her. The slogan of the national leaders might well enough be "Italy for the Italians," since that phrase summarizes a majority of their ambitions and to all appearances has the support of the people.

It is going to be a tremendous uphill job, this business of repairing the damages wrought by war. Sixty-two per cent of the Italian merchant marine was sunk by Austrian and German submarines—the Mediterranean sea was made into a graveyard of merchant ships, every one of which could now be put to excellent peacetime use carrying raw materials and food.

Enormous Task Ahead.

Half a million fine acres of land in the northern provinces of Italy, which was virtually abandoned during the Austrian occupation, may not be plowed this spring, owing to the shortage of time, and the enormity of the task of rehabilitating the farm population. Several thousand plowing machines must be rushed in for the work, if it is to be accomplished, as well as a large number of horses for transporting fuel and fertilizers and for sowing the fields.

There is a food shortage in the meantime; meat and wheat and dairy products are very scarce, in fact, butter is almost an unknown commodity in even the best hotels of Rome, Milan, Turin and Genoa.

And there is a fuel shortage that is even worse, because Italy does not produce one pound of coal within her own boundaries. Every pound burned must be hauled in ships, either from England or America, and there is none to spare in England.

Not counting the excessively high prices of all commodities, these were some of the principal economic troubles the Italian government was endeavoring to overcome during the first weeks of the peace conference in Paris. The army of 3,500,000 men was still in uniform, although a few had been demobilized, and 900,000 men and women were still in the munition factories.

Slight Tinge of Anarchy.

Throughout the political situation there was naturally enough an undercurrent of radicalism, which, fortunately enough, was thought to be only slightly tinged with the anarchistic doctrines of the bolsheviks.

With this groundwork Italy's national leaders confidently expected to develop a greater Italy; an Italy that would be big enough, and prosperous enough, to keep at home most, if not all, of the half a million Italians that in former years were obliged to leave the motherland to find work in the Americas, either in the United States or the Argentine Republic.

First of all the government expected to do great things for the country by encouraging the development of water-power sites in the big rivers and in the mountainous country of the north, through the Trentino, which had just been won from Austria.

Food Administrator Crespi, here in Rome, outlined some of the advantages to be gained by the greater use of electricity generated by the hydro-electric plants to take the place of coal costing more than $100 a ton.

Available Water Power.

According to Crespi, and his views were substantially the same as those expressed by other Italian officials with whom I talked, Italy is today utilizing 1,250,000 horse power out of the 5,000,000 horse power that is available in all of the rivers and streams of the country.

"You must remember," Crespi said, "that it will be many years before it is an economic proposition to use every bit of the 5,000,000 horse power we own. It's a simple problem in financing. Some of the water-power sites must be left untouched because it costs too much to harness the power. The cost of installing a plant in these doubtful sites is at present too great, even though coal, the only power substitute, is frightfully expensive."

Crespi is a manufacturer himself, prominent in the silk industry, and is recognized throughout Italy as a practical administrator of large affairs.

More electricity will mean more factories; and that in turn implies the employment of Italians who before the war could not find jobs in their mother country. So the government is encouraging large corporations to create mountain lakes to conserve water that

Oh, Joy! Get the "Happy Savings Habit!"

W.S.S. We Save and Succeed

ALLOWANCE TO CHILD IS ROAD TO ECONOMY

Home Economics Expert Says Way Is to Teach Youth Early Proper Apportioning of an Income.

"The best and most natural way of beginning true national economy, wise spending and wise saving," says Ruth Wardell, head of the home economics department of the University of Iowa, and who last summer started a home economics department in a Cleveland (Ohio) bank, "is by giving the children an allowance. The lesson of properly apportioning an income thus is early learned."

Miss Wardell favors the allowance arrangement at a very early age, say at six or seven. It may then be very small, and out of it the budding citizen may be expected to provide only school pencils, tablets, etc. The purchase of school books provides a logical next step; a little later some personal belongings, such as shoes, may be added.

"I say shoes," explains Miss Wardell, "because children seem to take more interest in shoes than in most articles of wearing apparel, and because shoes represent a highly important item to which children frequently pay little heed."

The allowance should provide a little margin to encourage careful buying and saving possibilities. It should not necessitate so much care or thought as to burden the growing youngster. It should never, under normal circumstances, be "helped out" by irregular gifts or expected to cover other than the recognized items. The allowance, with its purchasing responsibilities, should be increased gradually, steadily. By the time high school is reached the boy or girl should be buying practically all his or her own clothes.

Miss Wardell tells an interesting story of a boy who called upon her in Cleveland, telling her of his manner of apportioning the rather generous allowance made by his father. He knew to a penny what every article he wore had cost him; he was intelligent regarding relative textile and wearing values; he saved steadily, systematically, with joy.

A Chicago mother started her little daughter out, similarly, at eight years old and at sixteen the girl was a better buyer than she was. These children were well started on the road to fine and self-respecting and independent citizenship. Both will enter college with a nice little financial nest egg to await the beginning of their business or professional life.

The child's allowance, it may be added, should be for necessities mainly, with but a fair and modest margin for personal luxuries and pleasures. It should always be recognized as allowing for a regular proportion of savings, preferably invested in government securities. It should be carefully adjusted, rigidly adhered to on both sides of the bargain. Such respect and observance not only will teach the child good economic habits, but will abolish many too frequent annoyances for the financial head of the family.

Each child given an allowance will understand that this sum, with his support and other parental provisions, represents his fair share of the family income, and that, as a decent citizen, he must not ask nor expect to exceed it. An adequate allowance system, moreover, will obviate the evil habit of crying or pleading for special indulgences and more funds.

—THINK BEFORE YOU SPEND—

Diamonds? Why Not W. S. S.?

Diamonds to the value of $2,000,000—more than half the available world supply and value—are owned in the United States of America.

Pretty things, diamonds, fascinating to watch, pleasing to wear, of high commercial value. Diamond prices rise every now and again, truly, but the rate of increase cannot be precisely calculated, and the risk of owning diamonds is large—unless they're tucked away in the safety deposit vaults where no one ever sees them.

Now $2,000,000,000 invested in government securities, War Savings Stamps, for example, would mean much better times for the country. Why not, for the sweet girl graduate, the bride, wife to be honored, War Savings Stamps instead of a diamond? Bright thought! The War Savings Stamps now and the diamond five years later—out of the War Savings Stamps profits when they mature.

SAVING TO STABILIZE BUSINESS OF COUNTRY

Systematic Buying and Elimination of Waste Lead to Prompt Payment of Bills and Happiness.

American thrift will go far to save the life of the world, to bring liberty and to make the pursuit of happiness possible to oppressed humanity. Periodically in the United States there have come times of financial depression; production has exceeded consumption; factory doors have closed; workers have found themselves without money and the retailers who serve them have faced the gloomy alternative of refusing credit and going out of business because of lack of trade, or extending credit and going to smash because of lack of funds. The store closes its doors and immediately other stores, even those competing, feel the unwholesome influence. Panic spreads just as surely as when there is a run on a bank and failure stares many merchants in the face.

Now the more thrifty people of a community are the more promptly they pay their bills, and the more promptly bills are paid the more remote becomes the possibility of failure. If every worker is a systematic saver, with savings made possible by careful, intelligent buying and the elimination of waste, the hard time will be safely bridged and will be tremendously shortened. It is, therefore, good business for the retailer to join in a campaign against impulsive buying and waste. The mechanic who, in flush times, buys an unnecessarily elaborate article, and who, in hard times, repudiates his bills, is not as good a customer as the one who used restraint in his day of prosperity and had a margin for the rainy day. The former undermines business—the latter stabilizes it.

The judicious buyer who exercises care in his purchase also carefully and conscientiously meets his obligations. The man who throws money away treats his bills as "a scrap of paper."

Waste is an enemy of good business. In certain districts of New York investigators found that 11 per cent of the contents of the garbage cans was perfectly good foodstuff. The amount of usable material abandoned in this country every year amounts to millions. The farmer leaves the plow to rust away outside the barn all winter; the housewife overheats the house; the factory worker throws good material on the scrap heap, and all those things make it possible that in the United States today there are 1,250,000 people, whose working days are over, dependent upon charity, individual and county, to the extent of $220,000,000 a year, dependent because in their earning days they cultivated habits of waste rather than those of thrift.

Education in thrift must be an education in values. That education must extend past the workers of today to the workers of tomorrow. Hereafter more of a youth's precious school hours should be devoted to a consideration of the principles of how to live, how to take a helpful and progressive part in the problems of a workaday world. The biggest lack in this nation is a department which will teach the value of a dollar.

The young man who in school received the proper training in thrift will take account of the use of savings. Savings is worse than useless if the hard-earned accumulations are invested in some of the innumerable gold-brick, get-rich-quick schemes which take millions of dollars out of our communities each year.

The treasury department is confident that no safer and more attractive plan has been offered for the encouragement of small systematic investment than that of War Savings Stamps. If the investor can lay aside but 25 cents a week he has here the means of putting that amount away in a safe security. If he can set aside four dollars and a few odd cents each week that amount begins working for him at a good rate of interest, which, with the principal, he will receive at the end of five years. Let the necessity of redemption arise through illness or hard times—he can have the ready cash ten days after he applies for it.

In a certain great industrial plant where 90 per cent of the employees were regular buyers of thrift stamps the influenza epidemic was met with the minimum of suffering. The men had the funds available for doctor and medicine and proper food. They met their bills promptly and did not embarrass the merchants of the community. It would be hard today to get any of these men to abandon the thrift habit which the government has taught them.

—SAVE IN WAR ON WASTE—

Cardinal Gibbons for Savings.

An appeal for continued support of the government's war savings campaign has been issued by Cardinal Gibbons.

"We should welcome the opportunity afforded by our government," said the cardinal, "to continue the saving habit. To buy war savings is the clear duty of every American citizen, young and old. I urge all our clergy to promote this campaign by every means in their power. I urge our good people to give their heartiest support, and from the splendid evidences of their patriotism shown in the last two years I am confident that it will meet with great success."

The River

When the Colorado Burst Its Banks and Flooded the Imperial Valley of California

By EDNAH AIKEN

(Copyright, Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

Gently, Gerty expressed her belief that she was doing the best thing for her husband in getting up a public affair for his successor. She did think that Tom would see that it showed they had no feeling.

"I think it a fine idea," agreed Innes heartily. "I'm sure Tom will, too, when he thinks about it." But she did not give him any chance to express himself. "How are you going to manage it, Gerty? You said it was going to be progressive?"

"We shall draw for partners," said Mrs. Hardin. "And change every half a mile. The first lap will be two miles; that will give some excitement in cutting for partners." Easy, being the hostess, to withhold any slip she pleased, easy to make it seem accidental!

"When is this circus coming off?" inquired her husband.

"Mr. Rickard says he will be back on the first; that he'll be free on the second."

"For half an hour, I'll listen to Mrs. Youngberg tell me how hard it is to have to do without servants, as she's never done it in her life before. For another half-mile, Mrs. Hatfield will tell me all about her dear little kiddies. Sounds cheerful. Why didn't you choose cards? No one has to talk then."

There was an interval when his wife appeared to be balancing his suggestion. "No, I think it will have to be a drive; for I've told every one about it."

"Well," remarked her husband, "I only hope something will happen to prevent it."

"Tom!" exclaimed Gerty Hardin. "What a dreadful thing to say. That sounds like a curse. You make my blood run cold."

"Shu!" said Hardin, picking up his hat. "That was no curse. You wouldn't go if it rained, would you?" "Oh, rain!" She shrugged at that possibility.

"Well, you wouldn't go if the wind blows!" retorted Hardin, leaving the room.

The Dragon Takes a Hand.

The company's automobile honked outside. Hardin frowned across the table at his wife. "You're surely not going such a night as this?"

Gerty gave one of her light, elusive shrugs. No need to answer Tom when he was in one of his black moods. This was the first word he had spoken since he had entered the tent. She had warned Innes by a lifted eyebrow—they must be careful not to provoke him. Something had gone wrong at the office, of course! How much longer could she stand his humors, these ghastly silent dinners?

"The river on a rampage, and we go for a drive!" jeered Hardin.

The flood was not serious—yet! Tom loved to cry "Wolf!" No one was alarmed in town—Patton, Mrs. Youngberg, would have told her. Of course, one never knew what that dreadful river would do next, but if one had to wait always to see what the river's next prank would be, one would never get anywhere!

Innes was leaving the table. "Well, I suppose I should be lashing on my hat!" Gerty's pretty lips hardened as the girl left the tent. These Hardins always loved to spoil her enjoyment. They would like her to be a nun, a cloistered nun!

At the opening of the door, the wind tore the pictures from the piano. Gerty ran into her room, shutting herself in against further argument. She came back into the room, powdered and heavily veiled against the wind. A heavy winter ulster covered the new mull gown which she had not worn at supper, though Innes could have helped her with the hooks! But there was always so much talk about everything!

They had to face the gale as the machine swept down the wind-crazed street.

It was too bad to have a night like this! And all her work—Tom and his sister would have it go for nothing! She was made of sterner stuff than that. Life had been dealing out mean hands to her, but she would not drop out of the game, acknowledge herself beaten—luck would turn, she would get better cards.

In the hall of the Desert hotel, the party was assembling. Mrs. Hardin's roving eye scanned the hall. Rickard was not there. Patton called her from the desk. Some one wanted her at the telephone. It was Rickard, of course, at the office; to say he had been detained. The fear which had been chilling her passed by.

It was not Rickard on the wire, but Mrs. Hatfield, loquacious and coquettish. She urged a frightful neuralgia, and hoped that she was not putting her hostess to any inconvenience at this last moment. She wanted to prolong the conversation—had the guests all come? Were they really going? Then she must be getting old, for a night like this dismayed her! Gerty felt her good-night was rudely abrupt. But was she to stand there gabbling all night, her guests waiting?

She prayed that Rickard would be there when she returned. What a travesty if the guest of honor should disappoint her! Though he was not among the different groups, her confidence in his punctiliousness reassured her. She must hold them a little longer. She flitted gaily from one standing group to another. Her eyes constantly questioned the clock.

"How long are you going to wait for Mrs. Hatfield?" Her husband came up, protesting.

"Mrs. Hatfield," she explained distantly, "is not coming. We are waiting for Mr. Rickard."

"He didn't come in on that train; he's at the Heading," Hardin added something about trouble at the intake, but Gerty did not heed. Tom had known and had not told her when there was yet time to call it off!

"A pretty time to tell me!" Had he been looking at her, he would have been left no illusions. Her blue eyes flashed hate.

"I did not know it until we got here. There was a message from MacLean at the desk, waiting."

MacLean was not there, either! "We are all ready," she cried.

"Mrs. Hatfield and Mr. Rickard cannot come." Not for worlds would she give in to her desire to call the whole grim affair off; let them think she was disappointed, not she. Though the world blew away, she would go.

She found herself distributing slips of mangled quotations. The white slips went to the women; the green bits of pasteboard to the men. She held a certain green card in her glove: "Leads on to fortune." Rickard might come dashing in at the last moment, the ideal man's way; a special, perhaps; it did not seem credible that he would deliberately stay away without sending her word.

In a burst of laughter, the company discovered then that the guest of honor was also absent. Mrs. Hardin hurried them out to the waiting buggies.

Dreadfully, they drove down the flying street. The wind was at their backs, but it tore at their hats, pulled at their tempers. Their eyes were full of street dust.

A flash of light as they were leaving town brightened the thick dust clouds. "What was that?" cried Gerty. She was ready for any calamity now. "Not lightning?" Again, the queer light flashed across the obscured sky. Tom roused himself to growl that he hadn't seen anything. And the dreary farce went on.

Innes' partner was young Sutcliffe, the English zamjero. He was in the quicksand of a comparison between English and American women. Innes mischievously coaxing him into deeper waters, when there was a blockade of buggies ahead of them.

"The A B C ranch," cried Innes, peering through the veil of dust at the queer unreal outlines of fences and trees. "It's our first stop."

"Oh, I say, that's too bad," began Sutcliffe. Innes was already on the road, her skirts whipped by the wind into clinging drapery.

Gerty's party found itself disorganized. Partners were trying to find or lose each other. "Get in here!" Innes heard the voice of Estrada behind her. He had a top buggy. She hailed a refuge.

"Splendid!" she cried. "What a relief!" Climbing in, she said: "I hope this isn't upsetting Gerty's arrangement."

"Arrangement! Look at them!" The women were hastening out of the dust swirl into any haven that offered. With little screams of dismay, they ran like rabbits to cover.

Gerty found herself with Blinn. At the next stop there was a block of buggies. "No use changing again!" She acknowledged herself beaten. "Let's go on. What are they stopping for?" Dismal farce it all was!

She was pushing back her disheartened curls when the beat of horses' hoofs back of them brought the blood back into her wind-chilled cheeks. "Rickard!" she thought. "He must have come in a special!" The gloom suddenly disgorged MacLean.

"Hardin! Where is he?"

"What's up?" yelled Blinn. "Is it the river?" MacLean's face answered him. His ranch scoured again—"God Almighty!"

"The river!" screamed the women. The men were surrounding MacLean, whose horse was prancing as if with the importance of having carried a Revere. "The levee!" called MacLean. "Where's Hardin?" He spurred his mare toward Hardin, who was blacker than Napoleon at Austerlitz. "You're needed. They're all needed." The other voices broke in, the men pressing up. This threatened them all. Blinn's ranch lay in the ravaged sixth district. Nothing would save him. Youngberg belonged to water company number one; their ditches would go. Hollister and Wilson of the Palo Verde saw ruin ahead of them. Each man was visualizing the mad onward sweep of that destroying power. Like ghosts, the women huddled in the dust-blown road.

"Where is it now?" demanded Blinn. "It's here, right on us. You're all needed at the levee," bawled MacLean.

The levee! There was a dash for buggies, a scraping of wheels, the whinnying of frightened horses. Some one recalled the flashes of light they had seen on leaving town. "What were those lights—signals?"

"From the water-tower," MacLean's voice split the wind. "The wires are all down between the Crossing and the towns. Colonel was on the tower—he got the signal from the Heading—he's been there each night for a week!" This was a great night—for his chief, Rickard!

Gerty Hardin caught the thrill of his hero-worship. How splendid, how triumphant!

Innes found herself in her brother's buggy. His horse, under the whip, dashed forward. Suddenly he pulled it back on its haunches, narrowly averting a jam. "Where's MacLean?"

The boy rode back. "Who's calling me?"

"Give me your horse," demanded Hardin. "You take my sister home."

Gerty Hardin's party was torn like a bow of useless flimsy. Facing the wind now, no one could talk; no one wanted to talk. Each was thrashing out his own thoughts; personal ruin stared them in the face. Every man was remembering that reckless exposed out of Hardin's; pinning their hope to that ridiculed levee. The horses broke into a reckless gallop, the buggies lurching wildly as they dodged one another. The axles creaked and strained. The wind tore away the hats of the women, rent their pretty chiffon veils.

The dusty road was peopled with dark formless shapes. The signals had spread the alarm; the desert world was flocking to the gorge of the New river, to the levee.

The women were dumped without ceremony on the sidewalk, under the screened bird cage of the Desert hotel. Shivering, her pretty teeth chattering, Gerty Hardin ushered them into the deserted hall. The Chinese cook snored away his vigil in an armchair by the open fire. The men had rushed away to the levee.

"Women must wait," Gerty's laugh was hysterical. "We can do no good down there." She threw herself, conscious of heroism, into the ordeal of her spoilt entertainment.

It was always an incoherent dream to Innes Hardin, that wild ride homeward, the lurching scraping buggies, the apprehensive silence, this huddling of women like scared rabbits around a table that had else been gay. The women's teeth shivered over the ices,

When you are in perfect health, and are enjoying a strong and vigorous vitality, it is then that your blood is free from all impurities.

You should be very careful and give heed to the slightest indication of impure blood. A sluggish circulation is often indicated by an impaired appetite, a feeling of lassitude and a general weakening of the system. It is then that you should promptly take a few bottles of S. S. S., the great blood purifier and strengthener. It will cleanse the blood thoroughly and build up and strengthen the whole system. S. S. S. is sold by all druggists. Valuable information about the blood supply can be had free by writing to the Swift Specific Co., 24 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Their faces looked ghastly by the light shed by Gerty's green shades. She wished she were at the levee. She simply must go to the levee. "I'm going to get a wrap," she threw to Gerty as she passed. "I left it in the hall."

She stole through the deserted office, past the white and silver soda fountain, and out into the speeding blur of the night. Formless shapes, soft-footed, passed her. As she sped past the French windows of the dining room she could get a view of the shattered party.

Innes made a dive into the darkness. There was a dim outline of hastening figures in front of her. She could hear some one breathing heavily by her side. They kept apace, stumbling, occasionally, the moving gloom betraying their feet. A man came running back toward the town. "It's cutting back!" He cried. "Nothing but the levee will save the towns!"

The levee!

The harsh breathing followed her. As they passed the wretched hut of a Mexican gambler, a sputtering light shone out. Innes looked back. She saw the wrinkled face of Colonel, who had left his water tower. His black coarse hair was streaming in the wind, his mouth, ajar, was expressionless, though the fulfillment of the Great Prophecy was at hand. Beneath the cheek-splotches of green and red paint rested a curious dignity. The Indian was to come again into his own.

What was his own, she questioned, as her feet stumbled over loosened boarding, a ditch crossing she had not seen. More corn, perhaps more fiery stuff to wash down the corn! More white man's money in the brown man's pocket—that, his happiness. Why should he not thank the gods? His gods were speaking! For when the waters of the great river ran back to the desert, the long ago outraged gods were no longer angry. The towns might go, but the great Indian gods were showing their good will!

She joined a group at the levee, winding her veil over mouth and forehead. Dark shapes swayed near her. The wind was making havoc of the mad waters rushing down from the channel. The noise of wind and waters was appalling. Strange loud voices came through the din, of Indians, Mexicans; guttural sounds. Men ran past her, carrying shovels, pulling sacks of sand; lanterns, blown dim, flashed their pale light on her chilled cheeks.

Not even the levee, she knew then, would save the towns. This was the end.

(To be continued.)

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

B. F. McIntire has moved to a farm near Farmington. His son, Mark, has moved to the McIntire farm on the Yankee road.

Officer Eckstein of the Hammond police force was very much embarrassed Tuesday when a robber held him up in broad daylight and appropriated $12 of his hard earned cash. The Hammond chief has relieved Eckstein of his gun, star and uniform.

The city of Columbus is taking on a new commercial feature in the form of a wood turning concern which will very shortly be incorporated as the Columbus Wood Turning Company. A contract has been left for building the plant and much of the machinery has already been purchased.

When the Camp Grant basket ball squad meets the Commercial team of Columbus at that city March 19, Taylor, captain of the 1919 Columbus high school team, and Fately, all star backguard, will figure in the lineup. Both young men are well known in basket ball circles of this district. The Camp Grant team under Lieut. Bancalow is making a tour of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. According to reports reaching Columbus this team has not yet been defeated. It will play at Connersville March 18 and from there come immediately to Columbus.

IS COMMANDER OF NEGRO REGIMENT

Col. William Hayward, commanding 309th Infantry, negro troops, is one of the most popular commanders in the army. Both he and his troops covered themselves with glory by their bravery in the many important battles of the war in which they participated.

CONVERT LE MANS INTO BUSY CENTER

U. S. Embarkation Headquarters
Takes Care of Men to Be Sent to Ports.

Transformed in a few weeks from a quiet provincial town to the American embarkation center, LeMans was described in a dispatch received in Washington by the American Red Cross as one of the most important military points in France. The surrounding country has been divided into areas for ten divisional headquarters, the dispatch said, and the establishment when completed will be able to take care of 50,000 men in the camps, not less than 250,000 in the divisional areas, and for entrainment of 4,500 to 7,000 men daily to embarkation port. Each division as it arrived from Belgium, Lorraine, or Argonne, will go to the divisional area assigned to it. There the men wait until their turn comes to go to the classification camp, where they are medically examined and "deloused." Then they are sent to a forwarding camp, from which they are sent to Brest in troop trains or long strings of camions. At the port they either go aboard at once or into a rest camp to wait for an available transport.

The Red Cross, the dispatch said, has opened a large canteen at the LeMans railroad station and has instituted other activities. For the housing of casual officers and men as they pass through the town to join their division after being evacuated from hospitals a rest house of the dormitory type has been provided.

Mrs. J. W. Waltz, of Olivet, Illinois, who has been a guest at the Nazarene parsonage for the past two months, returned to her home this morning.

Weather Report.

Fair and warmer tonight. Thursday cloudy, becoming unsettled by Thursday night.

Invitations have been issued for a dance which is to be given at the Eagles' home Monday evening, March 17. The dance is to be a St. Patrick's Day affair and much effort is being expended to make it one of the most successful social events of the season. The musical program presents a very interesting personnel. C. H. Sewell, pianist at the Majestic opera house, will accompany Jack Becktel, saxophone player while Fred J. Haney North Vernon, will play the Xylophone, bells and drums.

Mrs. Ed Froh, of Edinburg is the guest of Mrs. Carl Lewis at Uniontown today. She will spend the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pierson, of Uniontown.

A large number of people from Brownstown attended the revival services Tuesday evening at the Vallonia Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fox, of Red-dington will leave tomorrow for future residence at Westport.

RETURNS ARE DUE FROM INCOME TAXES

corporation income tax returns will not be received by this office in time to distribute the same for a close examination and inspection prior to March 15 next.

"Having in mind that possibility I recently sent to all corporations of record a copy of form 1031-T on which to make a tentative return and apply for an extension of time in which to file their regular return. With reference to the situation you are respectfully advised as follows:

"First—Under the law it is your duty to pay on or before March 15 next, one-fourth of the amount of your income tax for the year 1918. This payment must be made even though no forms of any kind were furnished you.

"Second—You are requested to immediately estimate the amount of your tax, execute the form 1031-T recently sent you, and return to this office immediately, accompanied by a check payable to my order for one-quarter of the amount of the tax which you estimate to be due. Your check for the initial payment due March 15 should be large enough in amount to insure the full payment of one-quarter of the tax due.

"Third—Please read carefully the instructions printed upon form 1031-T before executing the same.

"Fourth—This form together with your remittance must be in my hands not later than March 15 next. Mailing on that day will not satisfy the requirements. The form and check must actually be in my hands on that date.

"Fifth—In mailing your form 1031-T both the original and duplicate should be sent in.
